Sandra Garrette

Sandra Garrette receives honor award

Sandra Garrette, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle N. Garrette Jr. of Amherst, has won the Amherst-Nelson Publishing Company Award.

The presentation was made recently during Senior Awards and Achievement ceremonies at the Amherst County High School by Publisher Thomas T. Byrd.

Miss Garrette, the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. T.R. Martin Jr. of Appomattox and Mr. and Mrs. Lyle N. Garrette Sr. of Concord, wrote in the essay that was part of her application for the Amherst-Nelson Publishing Company Leadership Award, that she credited her abilities to God.

"It is very difficult to praise oneself, to tell how gifted you are, how special. However, when you begin to think about talents, you can realize that the Lord has given all of us special abilities," she wrote in her essay.

"The Lord has blessed me with a warm heart and I feel the need to help people and to make people smile," she wrote. She has responded by serving as a member of the Amherst Rescue Squad, the Lifesaving Team at the high school. This past year she was SCA president, involved in various other school activities including being coordinator for this year's Muscular Dystrophy Superdance.

She has been a Hugh O'Brien Ambassador on the state and national level, and this summer will be guiding younger high school students as a counselor for those who attend the O'Brien Youth Leadership Seminars.

Children are her special interest and next year she will begin studying nursing at the University of Virginia where she received early acceptance; she plans to specialize in pediatrics.
